Now—the Only Reference Manual That Completely Covers the Business Relationships of This Important Industry—

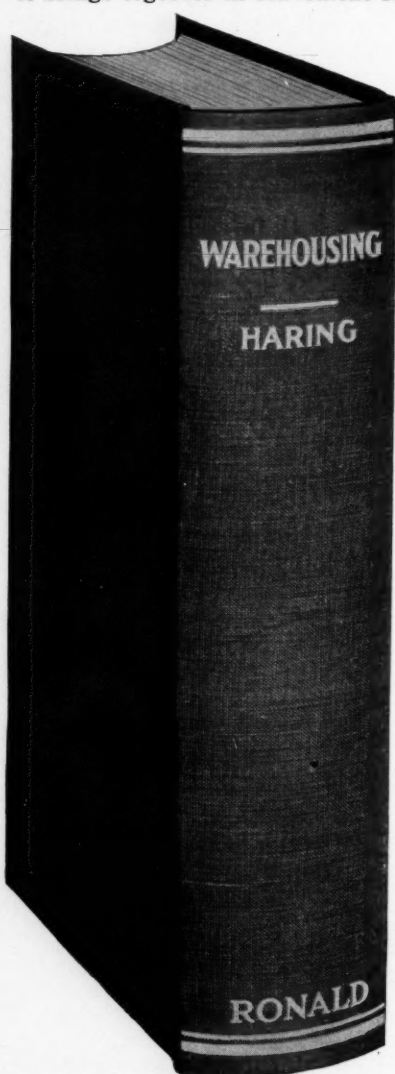

Warehousing

Trade Customs and Practices; Financial and Legal Aspects

By H. A. HARING

THIS new volume is packed from cover to cover with essential information on the merchandising, transportation, banking, legal, insurance and similar relationships of the warehousing industry.

It brings together in convenient form data for which the owner of goods, the banker who loans, and the underwriter who insures have until now looked in vain.

Covers Warehousing Relations for Agricultural Products, Grain, Cotton, Wool,
Tobacco, General Merchandise, Raw and
Manufactured Products, Household Goods,
Railroad and Wharf Storage, Yard and
Ground Storage, Cold Storage, Municipal
Storage, Custom House Storage, Municipal
Bonded Storage, Etc., Etc.

There has been, for example, no means by which they could judge and compare the fitness for their purposes of warehouses in distant parts of the country. There has been no organized information on warehouse customs, the basis of charges, the laws by which warehouses are governed, the facilities they offer, or the business relations of the warehouseman and those whom he serves.

The publication of WAREHOUSING makes all such data readily available.

Every warehouseman will want a copy of the book. In addition, all those to whom warehousing is a necessary adjunct to their work—manufacturers and merchants, their sales and advertising managers, railroad executives, members of commodity exchanges, bankers, and insurance officials—will find it a reference volume of value second to none in their offices. For details, see inside pages.
